Definition of “Honorably” for Patriot Service Award

Honorable Discharge

If a military service member received a good or excellent rating for their service time, by exceeding standards for performance and personal conduct, they will be discharged from the military honorably. An honorable military discharge is a form of administrative discharge.

General Discharge

A General military discharge is a form of administrative discharge. If a service member's performance is satisfactory but the individual failed to meet all expectations of conduct for military members, the discharge is considered a General Discharge, Under Honorable Conditions. To receive a General Discharge from the military there has to be some form of non-judicial punishment to correct unacceptable military behavior or failure to meet military standards. The discharging officer must give the reason for the discharge in writing, and the military member must sign paperwork stating they understand the reason for their discharge. Veterans may not be eligible for certain veteran's benefits under a General Discharge, including the GI Bill.

Other than Honorable Conditions Discharge

The most severe type of military administrative discharge is the Other Than Honorable Conditions. Some examples of actions that could lead to an Other Than Honorable Discharge include security violations, use of violence, conviction by a civilian court with a sentence including prison time, or being found guilty of adultery in a divorce hearing (this list is not a definitive list; these are only examples). In most cases, veterans who receive an Other Than Honorable Discharge cannot re-enlist in the Armed Forces or reserves, except under very rare circumstances. Veteran's benefits are not usually available to those discharged through this type of discharge.

Bad Conduct Discharge (BCD)

The Bad Conduct Discharge is only passed on to enlisted military members and is given by a court-martial due to punishment for bad conduct. A Bad Conduct discharge is often preceded by time in military prison. Virtually all veteran's benefits are forfeited if discharged due to Bad Conduct.

Dishonorable Discharge

If the military considers a service member's action to be reprehensible, the general court-martial can determine a dishonorable discharge is in order. Murder and sexual assault are examples of situations which would result in a dishonorable discharge. If someone is dishonorably discharged from the military they are not allowed to own firearms according to US federal law. Military members who receive a Dishonorable Discharge forfeit all military and veterans benefits and may have a difficult time finding work in the civilian sector.

Officer Discharge

Commissioned officers cannot receive bad conduct discharges or a dishonorable discharge, nor can they be reduced in rank by a court-martial. If an officer is discharged by a general court-martial, they receive a Dismissal notice which is the same as a dishonorable discharge.

Entry Level Separation (ELS)

If an individual leaves the military before completing at least 180 days of service, they receive an entry level separation status. This type of military discharge can happen for a variety of reasons (medical, administrative, etc.) and is neither good nor bad, though in many cases, service of less than 180 may prevent some people from being classified as a veteran for state and federal military benefits.

RECRUITING RIBBON and MASTER RECRUITING AWARD

Recruiting is very much a part of the MACO. It is how the MACO grows, and therefore special recognition is bestowed on those who take the time to help the MACO's membership grow.

The MACO Recruiting Ribbon is awarded to an Operative who successfully recruits ten members into MACO.

If an Operative has been particularly successful in recruiting and has successfully recruited 30 individuals into the MACO, they are authorized the Master Recruiting Ribbon.

To be eligible for this award, an Operative must submit a list of the members that they have successfully recruited (see below for criteria) to the Assistant Deputy Director (Operations), who upon verification will certify to the MACO Director that the nominee is responsible for recruiting the names submitted, if the recruit in question has appeared on any MACO roster prior to recruitment and that the required retention time has been met. The list must include the name, SCC numbers, the date joined STARFLEET and the date on which the individual joined the MACO by changing their affiliation in the STARFLEET Database.

A recruit is considered to be successfully recruited if:

- 1) An individual who is not a member of both STARFLEET and the MACO, joins STARFLEET and elects to be a member of the MACO by changing the affiliation option in the STARFLEET Database to either MACO and then subsequently renews their membership at the end of their first year. However, these individuals must not have appeared on any MACO SOU roster prior to their selection to count toward satisfying the total number of recruits required. Individuals who have been listed on MACO SOU rosters in the past will not be counted.
- 2) An individual who is currently a member of STARFLEET who changes their affiliation option in the STARFLEET Database to MACO and then subsequently renews their membership at the end of their first year. However, these individuals must not have appeared on any MACO SOU roster prior to their selection to count toward satisfying the total number of recruits required. Individuals who have been listed on MACO SOU rosters in the past will not be counted.
